OFFICE OF THE COURIER-JOURNAL,
LOUISVILLE, KY.

Dr. Winterwaith—See: Lawive a rule i have observed for many years, the value of your remedy prompting me to say, in reply to your request, what I know of your Chill Cure. The private assurances of its efficacy I had observed on Mr. R. W. Meredith, who, for more than fifteen years, had been foreman of my office, induced me to test it in my family. The results have been entirely satisfactory. The first case was of two years' standing, in which I believe every known remedy had been tries with temporary relief—the chills returning periodically and with seemingly increased severity. Your cure broke them at once, and there has been no recurrence of them for more than eix months. The other case was of a milder form, and yielded more readily to other remedies; but the chills would return at intervals until your medicine was used, since which time, now several months, they have entirely disappeared. From the opportunity if have had to judge, I do not heatitate to which time, now several months, they have entirely disappeared. From the opportunity I have had to judge, I do not hesitate to express my belief that your Chill Cure is available specific, and performs all you promise for it. Respectfully,

AN AWFUL ACCIDENT.

TWO PRINTERS KILLED AT WOLF RIVER BRIDGE.

Knecked Off the Top of a Fast Train-Their Bedies Found in a Ditch.

The ergineer of the freight train on the Louisville and Nashville railroad due at the depot here at 5 o'clock yesterday morning noticed an object be-tween the rails on the bridge over Wolf river, but had not sufficient time to check up, and a moment later the pilot struck the BODY OF A MAN, carried it across the river and pitched it off into a hole party filled with water on this side. At Wells Station, a short distance from the river, the train stopped, and the engineer in-formed the agent of the occurrence. Justice Coleman was not fied, and, summoning a jury, visited the scene and held an inquest. The treatling from one end to the other was splashed with blood and pieces of the brain of the victim. One of the rails at the point he was first seen by the engineer of the train was

DYED WITH BLOOD and the ground beneath was salurated, the indications being that the body had been some time on the track when struck. A cross beam reaching from side to side of the bridgehouse, at such a hight that anyone sitting on top of the car would have been struck by it, was stained with blood in which heir was to be seen. The jury reached these inclusion after a careful survey of the scene, that the victim had been sitting on top of the reer coach of the pssenger train which preceded the freight by half an hour, with his back to the engine when it passed under the bridge, and that he had been struck and instandy killed by the beam before he was aware of his danger. The nature of the wound in the back of the head,

CRUSHED BY THE BLOW. sustained the belief. From papers found in his pockets it was easy to identify him as B Frank Owen, a compositor, from New Orleans. A working card from Tyrographical Union No 80, Kansas City, a compoling rule, business cards from Fort Worth, Kaneas City and Chattanoog , and a number of letters, most of them signed "Mama," were found. All of the latter were dated at New Orleans and were of the most affect onate character. One bearing a Dallas, Tex , date, was signed "Uncle Will," and the writer expressed a desire to rave his nephew with him. All of the letters were in the most affectionate strain, proving conclusively in how much esteem the young man was held by his people. He was very neatly drested in a suit of fine cassimere and wore low quartered shors, one of which was in the mud hole into which he was thrown by the pilot. He was about 25 years of age, with auburn hair and brown eyes, and was smoothly shaven. The body was taken to a plat of ground near the National Cemetery and buried. On their way back to Wells Sta ion one of the men on the hand car which had conveyed the body to the burial ground, saw a coat floating on top of the water in a ditch this side of the tridge, and in fishing it out they pulled the body of another man out with it. Cards and letters in his pocket lead to the belief that be was also a printer, and his name J. Claude O'Baugh. Among Owens's The Pensacola and Memphis Road.

The stockholders of the Pensacola Claude O'Baugh, Typegraphical Tour ist," was found, and the inference is that they were both knocked off at the same time, O'Baugh falling to the rear platform and clinging there until the train passed ever the bridge, when he tumb ed off, dead, into the ditch. Justice Blackwell held an inquest. In both cases a verdict of accidental death, caseed by striking a beam while stealing a ride on top of the car, was rendered.

THIEVES ARRESTED

Who Robbed a Peddler on the Steamer James Lee.

On the last trip out of the steamer James Lee a peddler was robbed of his pack and was obliged to leave the boat when it landed at Helens, without having obtained any clew to the thiever. Capt. Hackett succeeded in finding a part of the goods at the house of a woman living on Union, near Desoto street, and the remainder were found yesterday at the house of Gustica Trice on the river front. Gustina and her husband and a man named Desson, both of whom were roustabouts on the James Lee, have been arrested.

Another Rebbery. Night before last, while Mrs. Plemfert, who has a grocery at No. 445 Georgia street, her residence being in the rear, was sitting out in front with her family, a thief cut the blinds of her bedroom and succeeded in getting away unde ected with an open face gold watch, a double case silver watch, a fine hair chain ficished with gold, an ebony cane with a gold head, a gold necklare and a Japanese box filled with family trinkets.

Leys. The Paducah Project in Court. St. Louis Republican: A matter affecting the estate of the late Dr. James H. McLean was brought up in the Probate Court yesteday by Messa. Fisher and Rowell. It appears that the decessed was a mejority stockholder in the St Louis, Metropolis Carbon-dale and Paducah rai road, which was to extend from Metropolis to Carbondale, $33 000 having been spent upon the construction of the line. It is c'aimed that the decessed was liable for $7500 for construction work on the road and that he entered into a contract with H. D. Fan kner, of New York, last June, for the purchase of his interest in the project; the price agreed upon, after fifteen more miles of grading had been ficished, being $85,000. The right of way to Vienna Junction and the Doctor's interest in the Star Building Company were also to be acquired by the New York gen-tlemen. For the reasons stated it was claimed the McLean estate had become liable for about $40,000. It was proposed by Mr. Faulkner that he should wave his claim in respect to the completion of the work, and secure the estate for $13,000, the balance due for the purchase of the McLean interest; that he would assume all obligations of the deceased in connection with the road. It is more than probable that the proposition will be ac-

BY A SON OF COL. ROBERT F. LOONEY

the Columns of the Weekly Republican.

A rod has been in pickle for Col. George G. Dent, the editor of the Republican, for some time, and it does not seem to have lost any of its strength through long soaking.

In the early spring time, when the trees were just beginning to put out their leaves, a weekly sheet christened the Independent was started, and though there was nothing independent about it, several candidates who were apxious for the Mugwump vote, sustwined it with their announcements. Atter all the blood had been drawn from that source that its editors could extract, the Independent was turned over to George G. Dent, who threw off the thin guise of independency and called it the Republican. He was determined to be talked about and have his paper discovered, and as he could think of nothing else printed the folernor:

"We have placed in the field as the Republican standard bearer 'Ail' Tay-lor. His brother 'Bob' seems to be the coming cominee of the Democratic party, shordy to meet at Nashville. We hope he will be. Diorell is prob-sh y a great man. The canvass of Coi. Bob Looney is perfectly abourd. If the Colonel or his triends will come to us, we will make a plain s a ement. We are afraid that Col. Looney will inaugurate a system of repudiation in the State. He has failed to pay notes given for money borrowed in person, and if he does this personally, how can we believe that he will not, as Governor, repudiate the State debt? Dibrell or Bob Taylor before Looney. We must have a man of honor for Governor. Col. Looney made enough money, it appears, in the celebrated suit of Looney vs. O'Conner to pay off his little debts. This seems to have arisen from penitentiary stock; hence, how can a laborer support him? Do they desire another, penitentiary ring If so, Col. Looney is the man. A man who will repudiate his own indebtedness is not a fit man for Governor, although the law may, by the statute of limitation or bankruptcy, aid him."

censed that so infamous and wholly unfounded a thing should be said about him, and his son, Mr. Thomas C. Looney, seizing a bg sick started out to hunt Dent up. He had been suddenly seized with an attack of gont and took the train for Hot Springs He returned a day or two since, and Mr. Tom Looney, who had also been absent, met him yesterday evening on Madison street in front of the Mercantile Bank. Walking up to him he tapped him on the shoulder to at ract his attention, and as he turned let fly at h m with his fist. Dent threw up both hands and avoided the blow, but Looney was in earnest, and the next time he let fly he cowned his man. He promensded on him until bystanders interfered and the police were called. Mr. Looney was arrested and put up a forfeit. Dent disappeared, but the police were looking for him late yesterday evening.

Saved From the Poison of a Snake

Bite. Captain Jack, a snake charmer, who has been traveling through Pennsyl-vania with an Indian medicine doctor and tooth-puller, was bitten by a cop-perhead snake, whose head he had put in his mouth. The snake bit him twice in the mouth, and Captain Jack said that he thought that it would kill him. He said that the accident was wholly due to his forgetting that from the 20th to the 25th of August copper-heads should not be handled, as then their bite is fatal. Fortunately for the Captain, however, he had a bettle of whisky in his pocket and a package of Ko-Ko Tulu. He drank the one and chewed the other, and at last accounts was reported out of danger.
